at 11:55 PM last night, I stepped out the front door to look at the sky and take some air & to my great surprise and pleasure, I saw a meteorite shooting star — the first one I have seen in probably 25 years. It went from East to West, and very quickly; I had the very clear impression that it went down in the back meadow, although it was probably 50 miles away at the least.

Spent much of the day in the BOC — typing RGT's summary history of the Lackawanna Valley Railroad for the next issue of the CHS&M Newsletter; also updated the CHS&M membership list (see p. 11 hereafter); also up-dated the "SRP- some basic facts" sheets; made xerox copies of all of the CHS&M minutes for this year; also, avant d'aller au BOC — I went to the CHS & met John Klunkiewicz — he will possibly be engaged by the high school as the audio-visual supervisor in the fall (which is excellent); while there I updated and completed my list of substitute teaching assignments for 1984-1985 and produced a new invoice for the NPG&LHR — Sales. No day was spent in tidying up loose ends as it were. While at CHS, I also ^{wrote} typed the letter to Amy Monahan that is shown here on p. 3.

Ceremony set for July 4th tribute

The annual Fourth of July ceremonies in the Carbondale Cemetery will take place on July 4 at 10 a.m., rain or shine.

Participating in the ceremonies, which are expected to take about 30 minutes, will be a member of the Carbondale Ministerium and members of the Maplewood Cemetery Association, S. Robert Powell, president. These ceremonies are held annually in honor of the more than 7,000 citizens of Carbondale who are interred in Maplewood Cemetery, the oldest cemetery in the city and one of the oldest cemeteries in northeastern Pennsylvania. The ceremonies are open to the public.

Free Memorial Park concerts slated

The city's Memorial Park will come alive this summer with two concerts of live music, sponsored in part by the Carbondale Historical Society and the Crystal Band. The Crystal Band is a public service to the citizens of Carbondale.

The first concert will take place on Sunday afternoon, July 14, at 3 p.m., when the Marywood Jazz Ensemble will present a concert of popular American Music. The concert is sponsored in part by the Lackawanna County Crystal Band presented an concert on the square in Memorial Park. Unfortunately, the concert was rained out after about thirty minutes. In December of last year, the Crystal Band performed a concert of Christmas music in Fellowship Hall of the Presbyterian Church. The Crystal Band is made up of musicians from many of the communities of northeastern Pennsylvania. Two of those musicians are from Carbondale: Manny Winters and Howard A. Yesson, both of whom play percussion instruments in the band. Manny Winters also serves as the Crystal Band's manager. The Crystal Band enjoys not only a local reputation but also an international also present were Mark Loftin and Rita Lucks; we met in the Park at the base of the G.A.R. Monument.

RGT drove by but would not attend the meeting because it was outside. He is seriously ill (mentally) and should be hospitalized: acute paranoia, among other things. He is a bitchy, snippy, spoiled baby who is emotionally about 8 years old.
